While we make every effort to ensure you fully understand the insurance product we have supplied there are certain facts we are obliged in terms of legislation to ensure that you not only know about, but understand. The most notable being the Financial Advisory and Intermediary Services Act (FAIS) and in the case of clients purchasing policies in their personal capacity, the Policy Holder Protection Rules.

The most important objective of these obligations is to ensure You, our client, have full knowledge about the organisations involved in delivering the service to You as well as full understanding of the product You have purchased. While every effort has been made to ensure we have achieved this objective, if at any time You feel we have not provided You with the information required or You do not understand the information we have given you, please ask us - do not assume! Whilst this information is important it does not form part of Your actual policy wording.

So what is it that we need to tell you? Let us start by explaining some of the terminology you may have heard about or may encounter in Your dealings with us:

Financial Service Provider:

This is generally your Insurance Broker, sometimes referred to as an Intermediary.

Underwriting Manager / Administrator:

Appointed either by a Product Provider (Insurer) or the broker to manage a specific type of product on their behalf. This is due to the specialist knowledge of the staff of Underwriting Managers and their ability to deliver a very focused and cost-effective service to ourselves as insurance brokers and ultimately You the Client.

Product Provider / Supplier:

This is Your insurer.

Each of the above may well have companies that are associated with them with whom we have a relationship. These could be subsidiary or holding companies or certain natural persons such as spouse, children, parent. Where these relationships exist, you need to be made aware of them.

Financial Advisory and Intermediary Services Act (FAIS):

This piece of legislation was introduced to ensure there are minimum standards set within the Financial Services sector, to ensure You the client receive the highest possible level of service and protection. It governs, amongst other things, the following:

1. The financial stability of the Financial Service Provider.
2. The Honesty and Integrity of the Financial Service Provider.
3. The ability of the Financial Service Provider to look after the client.
4. The formal qualifications required by the key staff of any Financial Service Providers who give You advice.
5. The methods and technical content of the advice given to You.
6. The need for each Financial Service Provider to be licensed before they can give You advice.
7. Standards for dealing with any complaint that You may have.
8. Penalties for breaches of any of the regulations required in terms of the Act; these include fines, imprisonment, and loss of the ability to carry on business; and
9. The need for us to have a Compliance Officer to assist us with meeting all our obligations in terms of the Act.

Policy Holder Protection Rules:

These require some additional duties to be adhered to by Insurers in respect of clients purchasing personal insurances. Where applicable to You these will be pointed out in this document.

Ombudsman:

The independent body created to further protect the client and deal with any disputes between insurers and clients. There are currently two such Ombud's:

1. The National Financial Ombud Scheme (NFO) is an independent body that resolves complaints brought by consumers against financial institutions. e.g. Your personal motor or household insurances.
2. The FAIS Ombud deals with all disputes for all types of clients that arise out of the provision of advice as dealt with by the FAIS Act.

Financial Sector Conduct Authority:

The body that administers the FAIS Act and other legislation relevant to insurance.
